PERSPECTIVES IN LEARNING
A Journal of the College of Education, Columbus State University

Philosophy

Perspectives in Learning is directed to publishing scholarly contributions from graduate and undergraduate students in collaboration with faculty, peers and community partners. The journal is intended to highlight the best academic efforts in research and educational leadership through involvement in formal and informal inquiry activities. Perspectives in Learning is published once a year each Spring. The submissions can take any of four (4) forms:

1. A research article chronicling an original study (4 - 6 pages)
2. An informed editorial on an issue relevant to the broad field of education (2 - 3 pages)
3. A book review about a work that is less than two (2) years old and written by a prominent author and/or about a relevant topic (1 - 2 pages).
