Columbus - Spanish or Indian?
An Essay
by
E. D. Murphy

In the November-December session of the 1827 Georgia State Legislature, a bill was introduced which authorized the laying out of a trading town at the Falls of Coweta. The bill was voted on the 24th of December and sent to the Governor, who signed it the same day. Paragraph Ten of the bill read, "And let it further be enacted that the said town shall be called and known by the name of Columbus."

Etta Blanchard Worsley, Columbus' eminent historian and author of Columbus on the Chattahoochee, wrote for the Georgia Review in 1947 "that the name Columbus was chosen, but we have never been told how or why." Mrs. Worsley wrote that on a number of occasions she would ask old timers, "why the name Columbus?" They all answered that they had always assumed that Columbus was named for Christopher Columbus.

In the same Georgia Review article, Mrs. Worsley made reference to a map found in a book written by Herbert E. Bolton and Mary Ross, known as Debatable Lands. This map shows a village named "Colone" located near what later became the town of Columbus. This village was actually situated on the west side of the Chattahoochee in what is now Russell County, Alabama. According to the Bolton-Ross map, "Colone" was located at the confluence of the Big and Little Uchee Creeks, near a place known as Nuckolls Crossing. Mrs. Worsley further wrote that "Colone" translated was "Columbus." From this statement by Mrs. Worsley, it is clear that she was suggesting that Colone was a Spanish settlement.

John Tate Lanning in a book titled Spanish Missions in Georgia identified Colone as one of four Creek Indian Villages burned by Antonio Matheos, the commander of the Garrison of Apalachee. In his rampage through Creek Country he sought the capture of Henry Woodward, the elusive English trader out of Charleston, who had made inroads on Spanish influence among the Creek Indians and had siphoned off much Indian trade.

In his frustration, Matheos, not having trapped Woodward, blamed four Indian Chiefs for their lack of cooperation and for their friendship toward Woodward. As punishment, he put the torch to their respective towns. These towns were Caweta, Tasquiqui, Casista, and Colone. This incident is mentioned here to show that the town Colone was Indian and not Spanish. This treatment of the Creeks by Mateos was typical of Spanish behavior towards the natives and was the cause of Spanish failure and British success in Indian relations.

In an effort to find the origin of the name Colon, many dictionaries of English, Spanish, Italian, French, and Portuguese were searched, but no Colone was found. Colon, yes, as Colon is Spanish for Columbus.

The Indian Village Colone identified by Bolton and Ross is the same village found on other maps and in other writings as Kulumi, Kolomi, Colomi, Coulommie, Coolome, Collumas, and still more variations of this Creek Indian name. It must be remembered that the Creeks had no written alphabet; therefore, historians and mapmakers had to depend on phonetics in order to record Indian names. Thus, it was the interpretation of the sound of a name which evoked the various spellings. This confusion is pointed out by the fact that Mrs. Worsley thought Colone was Spanish, whereas, Professor Lanning identified Colone as an Indian town.

Expressions of doubt about the origin of the name "Columbus" for the trading town to be laid out at the Falls of Coweta is not something new. Through the years local historians and writers have been suspicious of its roots. Local journalist and publisher W. C. Woodall, a prolific writer of stories about Columbus, in one of his articles, made this observation:
"All this brings to mind that Tom Sellars [also a writer of many stories about Columbus] in one recent column, dug up an old map of eighteenth century vintage, which located an Indian Village named "Columas", at the site of what afterward was the location of the town of Columbus. Tom was naturally wondering if Columbus (as in Christopher) might be the Anglicized version of the Indian name "Columas."

Although Mr. Woodall must have had some misgivings about the origin of Columbus, Georgia's name, he did remain with those who subscribe to the idea that Columbus was named for Christopher.

Luke Teasley in his column "Dawn on the Chattahoochee" in the Columbus Enquirer of May 15, 1963 wrote at length about Etta Blanchard Worsley's 1947 Georgia Review article which left the question of the origin of the name "Columbus" the same as she had found it; a mystery. She left the impression that it was a Spanish name when others have called it Indian.

Barbara Crane, a Columbus Ledger staff writer, wrote on July 14th, 1972:

"A local man saw a map in Colonial Williamsburg from the mid-1700's which bore the notation Coloomas where Columbus now is. This would predate the official naming of the city and suggest the name may have come from a former Creek town."

Another Columbus Ledger staff writer, Otis White, on October 13th, 1975 wrote most of what had previously been written and then added:

"Despite the fact that the Santa Maria sails right in the middle of the Seal of Columbus there are some people here who believe the second largest city in Georgia was named for something other than the 15th Century Explorer."

Back in 1963 when Luke Teasley wrote of Mrs. Worsley's Georgia Review article about Columbus and Colone, I was intrigued by the possibility that there could be some evidence of the existence of a Spanish village in our area and that the village was the source of the name "Columbus." It was not until the announcement by city fathers of elaborate plans to celebrate the quincentennial of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, that my interest in Colone was revived. I wanted to prove that Columbus was, indeed, named for the world famous explorer Christopher Columbus. Sadly, after many months of research no evidence surfaced. I was forced to the conclusion that there was no reason to support the premise. I then began to embrace Tom Sellar's suggestion that maybe Columbus, Georgia was not named after Christopher Columbus, but rather is the Anglicized name for the Indian village, Coloomas.

After subscribing to Tom Sellars theory that Columbus might be the Anglicized name for the Indian village Coloomas, I learned that the word, columbus, was not English, but a pure, unadulterated Latin word. The Latin word, columbus, means a male pigeon or dove, and so, in this instance, if Columbus was substituted for the Indian name Coloomas, then the word was not Anglicized, but Latinized. Since Latin was very much a part of the curriculum of the day, some Latin scholars of influence might have associated doves or pigeons with the area, and searching for a name for the new town, suggested Columbus in that connection.

To my mind, most weight has to be given to the idea that the name of the Indian village Collumas, Colone, Kolomas, etc. was the source of the name given to the new town. Furthermore, in light of Georgia history, I cannot believe that a state, a former British colony settled for the purpose of opposing the Spanish Government's claim to lands located in what is now the southeastern part of the United States, comprising the states of Georgia, Alabama, and Mississippi, could in 1827, name its prized experiment, the town to be laid out at the Falls of Coweta, for an explorer and agent of the Spanish government, no matter how great his accomplishments.

Because of English influence, tributes to Christopher Columbus were suppressed in the pre-revolutionary colonies. In his place was substituted the English navigator, discoverer, and explorer, Sebastian Cabot, who in 1499, discovered the coast of North America. Columbus was thus relegated to the Caribbean and South America. When the British Crown and Parliament became oppressive, things British grew in disfavor. There was movement afoot to play down the name America for Amerigo Vespucci, and to give credit to Columbus for the discovery of America. And so, the coined word "Columbia" was introduced. From then on things in America that were used for the purpose of honoring Christopher Columbus were known as "Columbia." So in keeping with the trend of the times, it would appear that when the Georgia Legislature named the new town on the Chattahoochee, had they had Christopher Columbus in mind, shouldn't they have been consistent and named it Columbia rather than Columbus?

Christopher Columbus has no ties to Columbus, Georgia. He died three hundred and twenty-one years before the town was thought of, and the nearest he came to the area was about a thousand miles.

In later years the Spanish worked their way up the Chattahoochee into Creek country and built Spanish Fort, about twenty miles below Coweta Town. The Jesuits operated a school nearby for Indian children. The Spanish stay among the Creeks was short-lived. Some were killed and others were driven out. They left no lasting influence on the area. To this day, as Mrs. Worsley has pointed out, no one has been able to prove that Columbus, Georgia was named for Christopher. They simply have "assumed."

It was not until the coming of the great General/Diplomat James Edward Oglethorpe in 1739 that any appreciable positive influence was made on the Micos or the Creek Confederacy. It is therefore Oglethorpe and those who followed him into Creek Country who deserve our attention and tribute.

Perhaps no public figure in history had a more active tenure as James Edward Oglethorpe did as the leader of the Colony of Georgia. Six years after he brought his band of colonists to Yamacraw Bluff on the Savannah River, he made his way to the Chattahoochee River to meet with the chiefs of the Creek Indian Nation. This historic event is recorded in the many histories of the State and Colony of Georgia as well as the many biographies of Oglethorpe.

Oglethorpe reached the Chattahoochee at the location where eighty-nine years later the town of Columbus would be laid out. He brought his small entourage along a path that went right through what is now Uptown Columbus. He crossed the river just below Golden Park and went to Coweta Town, two and a half miles away, the capital of the Creek Indian Confederacy.

According to historian Dr. Hoyt M. Warren, author of Chattahoochee Trails, the event which occurred on August 21, 1739 at Coweta Town was one of the most profound political events to take place in all North America. Not only did Oglethorpe receive the grant of all the land he needed, but more importantly, the full military strength of the Creek Confederacy, the Cherokees, the Choctaws, and a number of other Indian tribes located in the southeast pledged to Oglethorpe their full support in any future disputes with the Spanish and the French. The Creeks granted Oglethorpe the immediate use of 400 warriors and the Cherokees pledged a like number. It was estimated that some 20,000 more warriors were pledged to Oglethorpe should the need arise.

Three years later at the Battle of Bloody Marsh on St. Simon's Island, he defeated the Spanish. From that date on, Spanish and French influence in the Southeast began to wane, never to recover. The great
Dr. Warren said that without the success at Coweta Town, Georgia and South Carolina would have been lost and there might not have been a Yorktown, a Battle of Horseshoe Bend, or a War of 1812. It is highly conceivable that had not Oglethorpe crossed the Chattahoochee, George Washington might not have had the opportunity to cross the Delaware.

In view of the above, I have been simply amazed that our historians have ignored this gem of American history. The only evidence of recognition of this remarkable event is a granite boulder originally installed in 1922 at the foot of Broad Street by the Oglethorpe Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, marking Oglethorpe’s crossing of the Chattahoochee to meet with the Indians at Coweta Town. Since 1922 the memorial has been moved around to several locations as if the City didn’t exactly know what to do with it. In recent times, however, the memorial has found a home as part of the Chattahoochee Promenade. A small acknowledgement for such a colossal event. If today a history minded individual wanted to see the spot on the Chattahoochee where Oglethorpe crossed or where Kennard’s Ferry was, he would look in vain, or if he wanted to know where Coweta Town (there were two—the Warrior Town and the Peace Town) was, he would also look in vain; for there are no markers!

Had Oglethorpe elected to stay with the Colony of Georgia and lead her through the Revolution, he would have taken a place in American history beside Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Hancock, Franklin, etc. But alas! He returned to England and remained a loyal subject of the King; however, he never raised a hand against his colony and was one of the first to welcome Benjamin Franklin at the court of St. James. Nothing Columbus, Georgia might do in the future could be too much to honor this great man.

John Forsyth was Governor of Georgia in 1827 when the Legislature passed the act to lay out a town at the Falls of Coweta. At one time or another, he was the Attorney General of the State of Georgia, a member of the Georgia House of Representatives, a member of the U. S. House of Representatives, U. S. Senator, Minister to Spain, and Secretary of State under Presidents Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren. An outstanding accomplishment of John Forsyth was that while Minister to Spain, he negotiated what is now the state of Florida for the United States. The Boston Globe wrote of John Forsyth, "that he was such an elegant orator, the rhythmic accent of his voice had the sound of an Aeolian Harp."

Mirabeau Bonapart Lamar, founder of the Columbus Enquirer, was one of the town’s first citizens. He published his first issue about six weeks before the first city lot was sold. There was such enthusiasm for the new town that many people moved into the location before the survey was completed. Many buildings both commercial and residential, were built on skids so they could be moved to a permanent location later. The first Enquirer must have been printed in such a building. On August 21, 1830 Lamar’s wife, Tabitha, died. He was devastated. He pulled up stakes, sold the Enquirer, moved to Texas, joined Sam Houston’s revolution, was made a General, and led his army against Santa Anna and defeated him at San Jacinto; which made Texas free. He became the first Texas Secretary of War and Commander and Chief of the Army. He later became Vice President and in 1838 was elected as second President of the Republic of Texas. Mirabeau Lamar was a frequent visitor to Columbus through the years until his death in 1859.

The five men appointed by Gov. Forsyth, according to the act of the legislature, to form a Board of Commissioners to supervise the laying out of the town at the Falls of Coweta were:

Ignatius A. Few, a graduate of Princeton, a lawyer, soldier (Col. U.S. Army), Methodist Minister, first President of Emory University, and after Columbus was established, for several years, Pastor of St. Luke Methodist Church.
Brig. Gen. Elias Beall, of Munroe County, was prominent in State politics, and served in the House of Representatives, State Senate, and as presidential elector. He commanded the Georgia Militia in the Indian Wars and served with Gen. Winfield Scott in the Florida Campaign.

Col. Philip H. Alston of Elbert County was a surveyor as a young man. He was married to Miss Sarah D. Park in what was probably the first wedding to take place in Columbus in 1828.

Dr. Edwin L. DeGraffenreid, a physician, moved to the area in 1825 when it was known as the Coweta Reserve. He was a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, a friend of Daniel Webster, and known as an eminent scholar.

James Hallam was a resident of Muscogee County and was believed to be a merchant and an Indian trader. It is unfortunate that more isn't known about James Hallam. It is obvious that since he was a resident of the area, he served as a liaison between the Board and the natives.

My favorite of all the pioneers is the Civil Engineer Edward Lloyd Thomas, who was appointed by the Board of Commissioners to plan and execute the survey of the new town. In 1962, Emory University Professor John H. Goff wrote in the Emory University Quarterly that "... Rev. Edward Lloyd Thomas, a Methodist preacher, proved so proficient at his hobby of surveying, that he became an eminent early surveyor of Georgia and a skilled pioneer civil engineer." E. L. Thomas was so respected as a surveyor, he was called on many occasions to settle land disputes, the most noted of which was the line between Georgia and Alabama. In 1826 Governor Troup of Georgia directed Thomas to survey this line.

The survey was commenced at the mouth of Uchee Creek on the West bank of the Chattahoochee, near present day Lawson Field, Ft. Benning. Thomas ran a meandering line on the West bank of the river to a point above West Point called Miller's Bend; thence, a strait line 145 miles to a Cherokee town known as Nickerjack on the Tennessee line. The survey has never been challenged. Col. Robert A. Blount, Chairman of the Georgia Boundary Commission, wrote Gov. Troup that "Edward Lloyd Thomas was justly entitled to stand at the head of his profession for accuracy and correctness." It is difficult for a layman to understand Rev. Thomas' wish that his reputation as a Civil Engineer be relegated to the status of an amateur. This, no doubt, was because he did not want his secular activities to be considered superior to his work in the ministry.

In January 1828 Edward Lloyd Thomas was selected by the Board of Commissioners to lay out the town of Columbus. The minutes of the meeting of the Board kept by the secretary, Sowell Woolfork, when combined with the field notes of surveyor Thomas, mixed with a little imagination, reads like a story book.

The following is the first entry of Surveyor Thomas' field notes:

"On the 16th January, 1828, the commissioners appointed to lay out and sell the lots in the town of Columbus, at the Coweta Falls on the Chattahoochee River, whilst in session at Milledgeville, chose me to be their surveyor: when returning to Athens for my instrument, I arrived the 27th and Monday the 28th of January entered upon the duties of my office. Commenced by examining the upper limit of the Reserve - beginning at a Birch, being the North West corner on a sluice of the Chattahoochee River, - Having found the Magnetic Variation to be 5' 38' Eastwardly, and adjusted my compass accordingly - I fixed on this variation, being the same that must have been allowed by the Surveyor who laid off Outlines of the Reserve. This day our axe-men and chain carriers were engaged making axe-handles."

When Edward Lloyd Thomas marked that Birch and set his compass, the town of Columbus was born.
During the next month - Thomas, with the advice of the Commission prepared and completed a plan and plat of the town. It is interesting to note that in recent times the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), an agency of the Federal Government, instituted a concept of Community Planning called a "Planned Unit Development" or more commonly, "PUD." The PUD prescribed in planning a new community that a balance be struck between residential, commercial, industrial, and provisions for schools, churches, recreation, cemeteries, government facilities, etc. be set forth. At the time that this concept was advanced, one would get the idea, by reading FHA literature, that some genius sitting behind a desk at the FHA had devised an entirely new idea for land use, yet; back in 1828, Edward Lloyd Thomas with the help of the Board of Commissioners created a "PUD" which today stands as a shining memorial to land planning. It is what is now known as Uptown Columbus.

In July 1828, when the survey of the town was completed, Governor Forsyth with a small number of aides came to Columbus, pitched his tent on the banks of the Chattahoochee, and assisted the Commission in the sale of the town lots. Records show that Governor Forsyth, in order to help in the success of the sale, purchased city lot # 329, which he kept for only a few months. Later a house was built on lot 329 by William G. Mulford, which in 1855 was bought by John S. Pemberton, the inventor of the formula for Coca Cola. He lived there until 1860. The Governor also purchased lot 391 from Mirabeau B. Lamar.

Part of the minutes of the meeting of the Board of Commissioners on February 18, 1828 reads:

"On motion resolved, Bridge, Franklin, Bryan, Randolph, Saint Clair, Crawford, Thomas in honor of Edward L. Thomas, the faithful and accurate Surveyor of the Board Baldwin and Few in remembrance of the delegates from Georgia to the Convention which framed the Constitution of the United States."

In circa 1885-1886, to my mind an unfortunate thing happened. Upon the advice of some well intentioned soul, the Council which governed the city at the time adopted a resolution known as the Philadelphia Plan, which substituted numbers for the illustrious names which were placed on the streets by the commissioners. How sad!

I am reminded of a story told of the famous sculptor Michelangelo. One day Michelangelo was standing by his masterpiece, the Pieta, which had just been put on display in St. Peters. While a group of visitors were admiring the work, he heard one of them remark that the artist was the "Hunchback of Milan". That night Michelangelo returned with a lantern and carved in Latin, on the band across the virgin's robe, "Michael Aglvs Bonarovs Floent Faceba" (Michelangelo Buonarroti, the Florentine, made it). I was lucky to have been born and raised in a house located on one of those marvelous streets laid out by Edward Lloyd Thomas, and was not aware of their magnificence until my business experience made me appreciate what land planning, engineering, and land development was all about. To me, the streets of Uptown Columbus, like Michelangelo's Pieta, are a masterpiece. I frequently, for the sheer pleasure, get out of my car and walk those magnificent Streets and I always imagine that I hear the spirit of Edward Lloyd Thomas cry out, to the people of Columbus, "Look Columbus, Edward Lloyd Thomas did this!"

Edward Lloyd Thomas gave the story of early Columbus one extra dimension - that of tragedy. On the 27th of February his son Truman, who was assisting his father with the survey, contracted what was thought to be a severe cold. It turned into pneumonia. The entry of Thomas' field notes of March 26 read:

"From Monday 17th March to Wednesday the 26th my suffering son continued to sink and decline under the power of the disease and half past five o'clock in the evening, precisely one hour after the arrival of his mother, departed this life, after a painful illness of 28 days. He is gone, and we must go------."
The Thomases, Edward Lloyd and Mary Hogue, gave Columbus the supreme gift, the life of their oldest son. When Edward Lloyd Thomas completed his work and left Columbus part of him remained at the Falls of Coweta. When the City Fathers name the proposed river front plaza they could do no better than call it Edward Lloyd Thomas Plaza.

EPILOGUE

After writing the above, and after much thought, I have had a complete change of opinion as to what Mrs. Worsley knew and believed about the Indian Village "Colone". I now think that Mrs. Worsley was aware, as were other historians, that Colone was Indian and not Spanish. I believe that she decided not to disillusion her "Old Timers" in their belief that Columbus, Georgia was named for Christopher Columbus. She attached little importance to the issue at the time.

I could easily join Mrs. Worsley in this premise, but for one fact that we are, by this error, giving all of our historic tribute, time, effort, and money to a myth, and neglecting the memory of our real historic figures: Oglethorpe, Forsyth, Lamar, Thomas, and others. There are so many more who down through the years have contributed much to the community; furthermore, Christopher Columbus doesn't need our adulation, his name and deeds are known the world over, especially in Europe, in the North, and in South America. Even if the legislation which brought Columbus into being had contained the words, "in honor of Christopher Columbus", which it did not, it would be wrong to give all of our tribute to him to the exclusion of other greats who have been part of our town.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Several months prior to the submission of Mr. Murphy's essay, I by chance came across quite an interesting book. Sherwood, Adiel, A Gazetteer of the State of Georgia, Second Edition. Philadelphia: Printed by J. W. Martin and W. K. Boden, 1829. On page 97, I found the following: "Columbus, p. t. (principal town) and cap., Muscogee County, and named after Christopher Columbus..." Needless to say, I was quite surprised, because as Mr. Murphy states, there are (or were) no known records linking the naming of Columbus to Christopher Columbus.
The Hatcher & McGehee Negro Book is part of the Chattahoochee Valley Historical Collections in the Columbus College Archives. It was donated to the Archives by Mrs. Lenora Woodall Nilam. The book is a record of the purchase and sale of slaves from 1858 to 1860 by Hatcher & McGehee, one of three slave trading companies that operated in Columbus. The company was run by Samuel J. Hatcher, a native of Virginia, and Allen Clements McGehee, a native of Jones County, Georgia. According to the 1860 Columbus City Directory, the other two 'slave depots' were Harrison & Pitts and S. Ogletree.

A student paper entitled "The Development of Slavery and the Slave Trade in Columbus, Georgia," written by Columbus College student Stephen Boling in 1979, provides an excellent overview of the local slave trade. In it Boling describes some of the undertakings of the Hatcher & McGehee Company. He also calculates the figures for the firm's sales. The following quote is from Boling's paper. For anyone interested in reading the entire paper, it is part of the Columbus College Collection, Student Papers Series, Box 24, Folder 7, in the Columbus College Archives.

The record of Hatcher and McGehee of the sale of slaves in Columbus is contained in a transaction kept by the two. Not only does it show the number of slaves sold and to whom, but also the cost of maintenance for slaves. Not only are individuals sold, but mothers and children, couples, and even whole families. The period covered in the transaction book is April 21, 1858 - April 4, 1860. This is when the slave selling business was at its height. A week later, Samuel Hatcher died. The following is a summary of the sale of slaves by Hatcher and McGehee during those two years.

The following transcript is of pages 2-13 of the slave book. The remainder of the sales records will be published in the next issue of Muscogiana. Note that in addition to the record of sales, the book does contain other information—much regarding the hiring out and maintenance of slaves. This miscellaneous information, in the final section of the book, is sometimes illegible. However, a transcription of this last section may be attempted at a later time.

The following is taken from White, George, Statistics of the State of Georgia... Savannah: W. Thorne Williams, 1849. A section such as this is included for each Georgia County in existence at that time. Other counties will be featured in future issues of Muscogiana.

This county is bounded N. by Harris and a part of Talbot, E. by Marion, S. by Stewart, and W. by the Chattahoochee, which separates it from Russell county in Alabama. Laid out in 1826, and portions of it set off to Harris, Talbot, and Marion, 1827. It is 23 miles long, and 18 miles wide, containing 414 square miles.

Post Offices.—Columbus, Halloca, Shell Creek, Upatoi, Roland, and Bald Hill.

Population, Taxes, Representation.—The census of 1845 gave to this county a population of 9,711 whites, 6,632 blacks; total, 16,343—being at that time the most populous county in the State, with the exception of Chatham and Monroe. Amount of State tax for 1848, $11,517.43. Entitled to two representatives to the Legislature.

Rivers, Creeks.—No country is more highly favoured with extensive water facilities that Muscogee county. The principal stream is the Chattahoochee, affording to the inhabitants a steamboat navigation to the Gulf of Mexico. The distance to its confluence with the Flint is 300 miles; to the Appalachicola Bay, 430 miles. The smaller streams, all of which empty into the Chattahoochee, are Upatoi, West Upatoi or Randall’s, Nocheefaloochee, Bull, Standing Boy, and West End creeks.

Towns.—Columbus is the seat of justice, situated at the foot of the falls, on the east bank of the Chattahoochee river. It was laid out in 1828, and is the third city in the State. Immediately before the town rugged and large rocks rise over the whole bed of the river, and convert it into a succession of rapids. It is laid off in oblong squares of four acres, each divided into eight square lots of half an acre. Its length, parallel with the river, is a mile and a quarter; in breadth, a little more than half a mile. Columbus is divided into six wards, named Franklin, Randolph, St. Clair, Thomas, Few, and South. The position of the city in relation to some important places in this State and Alabama is as follows:—From Milledgeville, it is 128 miles, W. S. W.; from Fort Mitchell, 11; from Newnan, 69; from Lumpkin, 35; from Macon, 90; from Augusta, 220; from Savannah, 290; from Montgomery, in Alabama, 90; from Eufawla, 45. The present population is 5074; or 1701 white males, 1543 white females; 1522 slaves, owned by residents, 266 by non-residents; 15 free persons of colour, males; 27 free persons of colour, females. The value of real estate, as assessed on the 1st of January, 1848, was $1,402,815. Amount of taxes received the same year, $21,000.

The city officers are, a Mayor, twelve Aldermen, Clerk of Council, Treasurer, Marshall, Deputy Marshal, City Attorney, City Physician, Sexton, Bridge Keeper, Hospital Keeper, Board of Health, Port Wardens, Fire Wardens.

There are several fine public buildings in Columbus; among these, the most prominent is the Court House, one of the most elegant edifices of the kind in Georgia. The churches are seven in number; Episcopal, Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Roman Catholic, and two for coloured persons. The Methodist Church is an elegant structure, built at an expense of $10,000. The Odd Fellows' Hall is a plain but substantial brick building, in which there is an excellent school, under the direction of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. Many of the private houses are large and beautiful, enclosed by grounds adorned with shrubbery, trees, &c. Like all other places in our State, Columbus has a number of Benevolent Institutions, among which are the Orphan Asylum, the Hibernian Society, &c. There are two military companies, viz., the Columbus Guards, and the City Light Guards. The city is as healthy as any place in the same latitude. About seventy deaths probably occur in a year. The hotels are well conducted. Columbus does a large amount of business. From 60,000 to 78,000 bags of cotton are annually received, and it commands much of the trade of Troup, Meriwether, Harris, Talbot, Stewart, Marion, and Randolph counties in Georgia, and a portion of Eastern Alabama. There are generally about sixteen steamboats plying between Columbus and the bay. These boats on an average carry about 900 bales of cotton. Freights vary according to the state of the river and quantity of cotton on hand. Seventy-five cents per bale is the usual freight to Appalachicola. Insurance three-quarters per cent. The boats run from the 1st of November to the 1st of June. There is a handsome bridge over the river belonging to the corporation of Columbus, which cost $40,000, and yields an annual income of $10,000.

Columbus is destined to become one of the largest manufacturing towns in the southern country. The citizens have been aroused to a sense of their advantages, and have invested considerable capital in manufactures. Should the railroad, designed to connect Columbus with the Macon and Western Railroad at Barnesville, ever be completed, it will place her on the line of northern and southern travel, open a communication with Macon, Savannah, Augusta, and Charleston; and upon the completion of the Tennessee road, it will afford the most expeditious route from Nashville to New Orleans.

Manufacturers.--As has already been stated, this county possesses great facilities for manufacturing purposes. The effective fall of the Chattahoochee at Columbus is 14 feet; the length of the dam is 500 feet, and the depth of the water on the dam at usual low water mark is 16 inches,—which, by calculation, shows that 2620 cubic feet of water per second will afford 2777 horse power; which amount of horse power will turn 72 overshot or breast wheels, each 14 feet long, which will drive 194,877 frame spindles, with corresponding looms; which amount of spindles will consume 48,800 bales of cotton per year,—there being 12 to 15 per cent. waste on the cotton will make the amount rather larger. The spindles and looms mentioned will employ 6,432 operatives, to pay which $31,180 per week will be necessary.

The goods are sold principally in Columbus. The owners speak highly of the conduct of the operatives.
Cost of machinery and machine shop

$60,000

The goods are sent to Eastern Georgia, Western Alabama, New Orleans, and Mobile.

Howard Manufacturing company; located in Columbus; capital, $85,000; designed for 5,000 spindles and 75 looms, and will employ 100 hands. Manufactures sheetings, shirtings, and yarns.

Carter Factory, belonging to Colonel Carter, of Milledgeville; intended for 5,000 spindles and 100 looms; not yet completed.

Variety Works, situated in Columbus, owned by Winter and Brooks; manufactures wooden articles; capital employed, $30,000. Hands employed, 60.

Winter’s Merchant Mill, now in process of erection; eight stories high, and with the machinery to be put in it, costing $30,000. There is a factory department connected with this establishment calculated for 3,000 spindles, to employ 75 hands, and will manufacture yarn exclusively. Capital estimated at $30,000 when spindles are all up and in operations.

Rock Island Paper Manufactory. This establishment, now in process of erection, is situated on the Chattahoochee, 2 1/2 miles above the city. The building is constructed of wood, 160 feet long, with rock basement, part one story and part two stories, to contain four engines, one Foudronier, and one cylinder machine, and capable of working up a ton of material per day. Will manufacture printing, writing, and wrapping paper. Machinery driven by two of Rich’s centre-vent wheels, 30 horse power. Owned by a joint stock company. Capital, $40,000.

Cotton Gin Manufactory; E. T. Taylor & Co.; steam power; capital, $40,000. Brick building, 44 by 96 feet, three stories high. Employs 40 hands in the various departments. Manufactures about 18 gins per week, and is prepared to manufacture 50 per week.

Columbus Iron Foundry; Wm. R. Brown & Co. proprietors; capital, $5,000. Amount of work turned out annually, 8 to $10,000. Manufactures steamboat work, mill gearing, water-wheels, gin gear and grudgeons, cast iron railing for grave-yards, fencing, machinery for factories, &c.

In connection with the above is Cary & Stanford’s finishing shop; capital, $3,000. Amount of work turned out annually, 5 to $6,000. Steamboat repairing, mill irons, iron doors, wrought iron railing, &c., and all kinds of finishing manufactured.

Janney’s Iron Foundry and Machine Shop; manufactures same as the two preceding. Has an engine of ten-horse power; employs six hands, and turns out 6 to $7,000 worth of work per annum; about that amount of capital invested. Manufactures steam engines complete, except the boilers.

In addition to these establishments, there is the old City Mill, with four run of stones for the manufacture of meal and flour, situated above the Coweta Falls factory. A company is forming, with a capital of $100,000, to build a cotton factory, to occupy three lots between the Howard Company lot and Mr. Winter’s.

Minerals.—From the very partial observations which we made when we visited this section of the State, we have no doubt that it is rich in minerals. Near the river, at Columbus, we noticed masses of granite and gneiss. In the vicinity of Columbus are found iron ore in small quantities, rose quartz, agates, and beautiful jasper; feldspar in abundance, carnelian, hornblend, epidote, and pyrites. In other parts of the county have been found pitchstone, hornstone, sulphuret or iron, prehnite, lignite, cyanite, black, green, and white mica, kaolin, pipe clay, garnets, chalcedony, talc, gibbsite, &c. The vertical rise and fall of the Chattahoochee is no less than 60 or 70 feet in the course of the year. When the river is low, there is exposed to view not only the horizontal tertiary strata, but the subjacent cretaceous deposits, containing ammonites, baculites, and other characteristic fossils. At Snake and Upatoi creeks, organic remains are found.

Nature of the Soil, Productions.—The nature of the soil is various, from the richest vegetable mould to the poorest sand. Cotton, corn, rye, oats, potatoes, and wheat, are the chief productions.

Climate, Diseases, Longevity.—The climate is variable. Along the creeks fevers prevail in the summer; but generally the county may be considered healthy. Mrs. Clara Meigs died at the age of 89; Philemon Hodges at 83; Richard Christmas at 77. Mrs. Gaillon is over 87.

Roads.—The roads are not kept in the best order.

Religious Sects.—Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, and Roman Catholics.

Education, Literature.—Columbus has a number of fine schools, in many of which a thorough education may be obtained. Number of poor children in the county, 485. Educational fund, $420.63 cents. A taste for reading is daily increasing. The newspapers of Columbus are well conducted. Many of the citizens take an interest in natural science. The late Dr. Boykin devoted much time to botany and other branches of natural history. Several gentlemen are now forming cabinets of minerals and shells. In the departments of theology, medicine, and law, there are many gentlemen in Columbus who have acquired celebrity.

Character of the People.—No people surpass those of Muscogee in hospitality; and for intelligence they will not suffer by a comparison with any community. The citizens of Columbus are particularly noted for their attention to strangers.

Market.—Columbus is the chief market for the county.

Name.—The name of Muscogee is given to this division of the State to perpetuate the name of a tribe of the Creek nation.
Confederate Regiments of Columbus, Georgia --
The "City Light Guards," Co A, Second Georgia Battalion

by
John R. Lassiter

The following is taken from Haddock’s Columbus, Ga. Directory, and General Advertiser,... Compiled by T. M. Haddock. Thos. Gilbert and Co., Columbus, Geo., 1873, pp. 16-18. This was the second City Directory published for Columbus, the first having been issued in 1859. Brief histories and rosters for other Confederate units raised in Columbus were also included in the directory.

Chartered and organized in 1847.

Enlisted in the Southern Cause, April 19th, 1861, and were sent to Norfolk, Virginia, while the Navy Yard was still burning. At Norfolk they became a part of 2d Georgia Battalion of Infantry, and on 20th of May, 1861, were engaged from battery at Sewell’s Point with the enemy’s vessels Star of the West and Steam Tug, carrying cannon. In this, the first engagement in Virginia, they succeeded in disabling and driving off the vessels. Remaining at Norfolk eleven months, they were ordered to Goldsboro and afterwards to Wilmington, N. C. Here they were re-organized May, 1862, by the election of Lieutenant C. J. Moffett, Captain, and were ordered to Petersburg, Va., from that time becoming part of the Great Army of Northern Virginia, taking part in the battles around Richmond, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Wilderness, Gettysburg, Petersburg, Farmville, &c., suffering severely in every campaign, and finally surrendered with Gen. R. E. Lee, at the fatal Appomattox C. H., the first and only time the Company was surrendered during the entire war between the States. The members of this Company having gained an enviable reputation in the service of their country, when the smoke of battle was over returned with equal energy to the quiet pursuits of life, and are all to-day active, useful members of society, endeavoring to place themselves and section in their former condition of prosperity.

The City Light Guards have re-organized since the war with the following OFFICERS:

C. J. Moffett, Captain
W. H. Williams, 1st Lieutenant.
G. J. Peacock, 2d Lieutenant.
F. M. Brooks, 2d Lieutenant.

The Surrender at Appomattox Courthouse

A Graphic Narrative by a Participant, now a Merchant of Columbus, Georgia

Nashville, Tenn., September 30, 1891.

In passing through Virginia en route to New York recently, I met a gentlemen, now a minister of the Episcopal church, who during the late war was a captain of artillery in the Confederate army. As we were in a Pullman palace car, dashing along at the rate of thirty miles an hour, the contrast between such a mode of travel and surroundings, with the former weary and hungry marches through many of the same places which we observed during the journey, was very impressive. Talk, talk, talk was freely interchanged, and many, many a battle scene recalled, with fresh memories of the elation inspired by the victories won upon the one hand and the sadness often felt at the loss of some noble comrade whose life blood had gone forth for the cause we were defending upon the other. Leaving Lynchburg for Charlottesville and standing on the platform of the car and looking towards the hills of Appomattox, the scenes of the "surrender of Lee to Grant" April 9, 1865, came vividly to mind. For a long time forgotten as a dream, they reappeared with lifelike freshness.

That was a panorama to stir the soul to its deepest depths. Lee, with his grand army of Northern Virginia reduced to about 8,000 infantry and 2,000 cavalry and artillery, hungry almost to famishing, having been for days without rations, ill clad but resolute to the last, on that Sunday morning that will be immortal in history, found the army of General Grant (numbering about 100,000) investing every road near us, leaving only surrender or inevitable destruction. The smoke of battle drifted away, the booming guns were hushed. White flags of truce appeared.

Along the road which our line of battle crossed, while our men were resting on the ground, General Lee rode forth with some members of his staff, passing our command—the Second Georgia battalion—and it was whispered along the line, "our grand old hero has gone to the front to make terms for our surrender." Doubt, sadness, gloom, settled upon our hearts.

Two hours, perhaps, or more and our General came riding slowly back. Soon as he reached our line, many of the soldiers gathered about him, and eager inquiries from numbers of them came, "General, are we surrendered?"

The answer seemed to give him pain. "Yes, my men, your are surrendered. The odds against us was too great. I would not lead you into fruitless slaughter. Private property will be respected; officers will retain their side arms and horses. All will be paroled and transported to your homes, and may you find your families and loved ones well. Good-bye, my men, good-bye." With tears flowing down his face, and dropping his bridle reins on his horse's neck, shaking hands right and left, he rode out from our midst, and the face of one of the grandest heroes of all time we never saw again. Old soldiers, battle-scarred by many fields of blood and carnage, dropped on the ground and wept.

May the patriotism, self-sacrifice, toil and blood, so nobly lavished by both sides in that fearful war, become the common heritage of a united, just, generous, and noble people.

And now I hope I may be pardoned in placing upon record a few items in the history of that time. Friday, April 7, (preceding the surrender on Sunday, April 9,) Sorrel's brigade, Georgia Troops, (formerly Wright's,) under command at the time of Colonel G. E. Tayloe, formed a part of the rear guard of Lee's army. Before noon near Farmville, Va., the enemy pressed us closely, deployed into line of battle for attack, and our brigade was quickly deployed to resist it. From noon till night we maintained our line, driving back two heavy assaults, inflicting much loss upon the enemy and ourselves sustaining great damage. About dusk, in front of the Second Georgia battalion (which comprised four companies, the Macon Volunteers and Floyd Rifles of Macon, the Spaulding Grays of Griffin, and the City Light Guards of Columbus,) a flag of truce was observed by G. J. Peacock, lieutenant commanding City Light Guards, and its approach reported to Major C. J. Moffett, commanding Second Georgia battalion, and he advanced to the front probably thirty paces and called out the inquiry, "What is wanted?" The answer was given, "Important dispatches from General Grant to General Lee." Major Moffett replied: "Stand where you are till I communicate."

A messenger was sent quickly to Colonel Tayloe, commanding brigade, and A. H. Perry, A. A. General of the brigade, came soon to our line, and with Major Moffett, went out to the flag of truce, and received the dispatch which was hurried to brigade headquarters and thence to General Lee. This dispatch, it was afterward developed, was the demand from General Grant to General Lee, for the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia.

About midnight our brigade, according to orders, silently left our line of battle and marched in column toward Appomattox Courthouse, and on Sunday morning, April 9, 1865, while deployed to the left of the road, the right of our battalion (Second Georgia) resting on the road, General Lee passed to our front to meet General Grant and negotiate the terms of surrender. Thus the fact appears that through the lines of the Second Georgia battalion passed the demand for the surrender of Lee's army, Friday, April 7 (about night), and Sunday, April 9 (about noon), General Lee passed to the front by the same command for negotiating terms of surrender.

Many particulars of this eventful day can be found in "Southern Historical Papers," Volume XV, obtainable of the publishers, Richmond, VA.

Yours truly,

G. J. Peacock.

- The above figures are for the period of June 1, 2017, to June 30, 2017.
- The ending balance of the General Fund shows a deficit due to the combination of various expenses, including postage, programs, and Christmas party costs.
- The Alliance Capital Reserves fund stands at a substantial amount, indicating a strong financial reserve for future projects and initiatives.
Queries

McNEALY-HAINES-WAGNER. Need marriage place of Ruth G. Haines from Coweta Co., GA, born July 1889 and Edgar Lancaster McNealy, born May 1882 possibly in Lee County, AL (Abbeville). His father was William McNealy from Jackson County, Florida. Ruth and Edgar had two children, Marjorie, born 1907 at Valdosta, GA and Charles Daniel McNealy, born 14 May 1905, where? My aunt Lelia F. McNealy Wagner was born 4 June 1874 in Columbus, GA. Charles D. McNealy, 5308 Main Street, Springfield, OR 97478.

RUSSELL-DANCER/DAMPIER-MASSEY-DUFFELL-BOZEMAN-THORPE. Need information on Georgia Anna Russell's parents who are believed to be James Russell and Elizabeth Dancer or Dampier. Georgia Anna married John Ross Massey in Muscogee County, GA on 8 Sep 1839. She was born 1822 in South Carolina. He was born 1813 in South Carolina. Both died in Crenshaw County, Alabama. "Georgianna" had one sister, Henrietta, who married a Duffell. Another sister, Louisa Victoria, married Robert Bozeman (1823-1883). Louisa had a daughter, Louella Thorpe, d. 1977. Louella Thorpe did extensive genealogical research. Where have her collections been deposited? Is it possible to see them? Opal T. Scott, P. O. Box 244, Greenville, Alabama 36037-0244

BROOKS Caesar Brooks (?-1884), my great-grandfather died in Charleston, SC in 1884 at the age of 28. He died of tuberculosis. He had been a laborer on the C&S Railroad while living in Charleston. His death records indicate that he came to Charleston, SC from Columbus, GA. Because his birthdate would have been prior to the onset of the Civil War, I believe he may have been a slave in or around the Columbus, GA area. I would gratefully appreciate any leads. Albert W. Brooks, 6 Fairlawn Avenue, Albany, NY 12203

BLANE-CRENSHAW-KENT I need information on the following people: Smith Kent who married Sarah Blane in 1817, and Cornelius Crenshaw who married Nancy Kent in 1809—both events taking place in Halifax Co., VA. Will answer all replies. Robert M. Mayo, 3364 Sycamore Drive, Baton Rouge, LA 70805-3468

BATES-REED Need any information regarding Asa Bates or especially Caroline Reed, b. 27 Nov 1819 (born near site of Columbus, Upatoi??), d. 5 Mar 1910 (Girard, AL buried in Linwood Cemetery). Caroline married Asa 1833/34. Mother of Thomas Jefferson Bates, Captain, CSA b. 1836, and Ella Antoinette Bates Ward (b. 1858) as well as nine more daughters, two more sons. Have more information on Asa Bates, but no other information on Caroline. Marjorie B. Chitwood, P. O. Box 162, Oswichee St., Seale, AL 36875
