Columbus Residents
in
Early Georgia Portraits, 1715-1870

Extracted by Callie B. McGinnis

In 1975, the University of Georgia Press published Early Georgia Portraits, 1715-1870, a work which was compiled by members of the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America in Georgia. A committee of Georgia women, chaired by Marion Converse Bright, conducted an in-depth search for portraits painted prior to 1870. Specifically, they sought out portraits of Georgians or portraits owned by Georgians. Their final product was a 338-page book containing hundreds of portraits of prominent members of eighteenth and nineteenth century society—primarily Georgians.

Columbus women who assisted in the compilation of Early Georgia Portraits, 1715-1870 were Mrs. Lindsay Neill Bickerstaff, Miss Emily Woodruff and Mrs. Burrell Cole. Other Columbusites mentioned in the preface include Lawrence C. Smith, Jr., and Al Alexander of the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer, Robert Byron Garrett, E. Brady Bynum and Robert Godwin Dennis.

The committee working on the portrait project received over one thousand prints of portraits. From that number, they chose almost six hundred for publication. In the book, they also include a section entitled "Unillustrated Portraits," which is a list of the four hundred or so portraits that were omitted. Unfortunately, there is no mention of geographic location in this list to identify additional Columbus portraits.

For each portrait included in the book, the dates of the subject are usually given. Also included are name of the artist, a physical description of the work (medium and dimensions), and the date or approximate date of the portrait, if known. A short biographical sketch of the subject, written by the submitter, accompanies each portrait, along with the name of the portrait's owner.

The portraits are divided into two groups: large size paintings and miniatures. Within each group, arrangement is alphabetical by the subject's last name. Also included in the book is a list of the artists and a list of patrons who assisted in the publication of the work. The index at the end of the book does not include the names of the subjects of the portraits, the miniatures or the unillustrated portraits, since these sections are arranged alphabetically. Rather, the index includes persons mentioned in the biographical sketches and the names of portrait owners.

Some of the book's Columbus portraits will be easily recognized by students of local history. There is the well known portrait of Dr. Edwin DeGraffenreid, with his left index finger held up, as if he were attempting to emphasize a point. Absalom H. Chappell, John Banks, John Mustian and George Waldo Woodruff, are also familiar faces included in the book. But then there are the others not so well known, particularly the wives and children of prominent Columbus men. We see Mrs. John Banks, Mrs. Robert Flournoy, and Mrs. John Urquhart. Mrs. John Lloyd Mustian's ca. 1845 portrait shows her, at about age thirty-one, with dark hair pulled back, wearing an off-the-shoulder dress and a lace shawl. Born Julia Frances Jeter, she married John L. Mustian an early Columbus railroad entrepreneur, whose land in Meriwether County later became the property of the Warm Springs Institute. We see little Mary Adele MacDougald, about five years of age, wearing a charming empire-style dress with pantaloons peeking out from below the hem; she is clutching a dove. Mary, the daughter of Daniel and Eliza Alexander MacDougald, born in 1833, later married Robert Emmet Dixon; she died in 1900. Also featured is the portrait of Mary's younger brother William Alexander MacDougald. Painted when William was about nine years old, the portrait features him in belted suit with a puppy at his feet. It will be noted that many of the Columbus portraits are the work of an artist named Edward L. Mooney. Mooney, who was born in New York City in 1813 and died there in 1887, worked primarily in New York and Georgia.
Portraits for the following forty-eight Columbus residents appear in the book. These entries were retrieved by reading all biographical sketches in the book, and marking the ones that mentioned Columbus. Consequently, it is possible that some Columbus residents were overlooked. All information about the portrait is included below except the biographical sketch itself. Please keep in mind that ownership of a portrait may have changed since publication of Early Georgia Portraits, 1715-1870 in 1975.

Readers desiring to look at the portraits mentioned should have no trouble finding this book. Copies will be found in most Georgia public and academic libraries. In Columbus, copies are available at the Bradley Library, in the Reference Department, and at Columbus College Library, in the Archives.

Muscogee County

by

George White

Laid out in 1826. Part set off to Harris, Talbot and Marion, in 1827. Part taken from Marion and Harris in 1829. Length, 23 m.; breadth, 18 m.; area square miles, 414.

No country is more highly favoured with extensive water facilities than Muscogee County. The principal stream is the Chattahoochee, affording to the inhabitants a steamboat navigation to the Gulf of Mexico.

The smaller streams, all of which enter into the Chattahoochee, are Upatoi, West Upatoi, or Randall's Nocheefaloochee, Bull, Standing Boy, and West End creeks.

The nature of the soil is various, from the richest vegetable mould to the poorest sand.

Columbus is the seat of justice, situated at the foot of the falls, on the east bank of the Chattahoochee river, 128 miles W. W. W. from Milledgeville. It was laid out in 1828, and is the third city in the State. Immediately before the town rugged and large rocks rise over the whole bed of the river, and convert it into a succession of rapids.

There are several fine public buildings in Columbus, among which are the Court-House, Odd Fellows' Hall, and Methodist Church.

Many of the private houses are large and beautiful, inclosed by grounds adorned with shrubbery and trees.

There are generally about sixteen steamboats plying between Columbus and the Apalachicola Bay.

There is a handsome bridge over the river, belonging to the corporation, which cost $40,000, and yields an annual income of $10,000. No place in the United States possesses greater advantages for manufacturing purposes than Columbus. Captain Basil Hall, of England, during his visit to this town, observed that the value of its water power could not be estimated.

Columbus has a number of benevolent institutions, among them the Female Asylum, a description of which has been furnished us by a lady:--

In the spring of 1840, a few ladies of the Methodist Church in the city of Columbus, in mutual conference projected an Association, educational and benevolent in its scope. The design of the Society, as its name and title obviously import, was two-fold. The Society was extremely fortunate in the selection of its beneficiaries, but was greatly embarrassed in the educational branch of its operations, by the constant drain upon its limited resources, and diversion of a large share of its funds to cases of physical suffering. These demands were so multiplied, and the cases presented so worthy of relief, that the funds of the Society were mainly appropriated in the way of charitable donations, leaving, after these contributions, but a scanty pittance for educational purposes. This exigency suggested a change in the plan of operations, and upon consultation it was determined to petition the Legislature for a charter, incorporating the Society, under the name and title of "The Columbus Female Asylum." The charter was promptly granted, and a neat brick edifice, at the cost of a thousand dollars, was immediately erected upon a portion of the Commons, generously donated by the City Council. The building was completed in the spring of 1845, and was dedicated to Christian benevolence the 7th of April, by Dr. L. Pierce and Rev. J. E. Evans. Thankful and exultant hearts united on that memorable day, with the ministers of God, in prayer for blessings upon the four little orphans and the matron, (who nobly gave her services,) the first inmates of the Asylum.
The necessary funds, in the outset of the enterprise, were raised in part by the needle, and an annual collation prepared by the members. This method of supply was so precarious, and the remuneration for work actually done was so insufficient, that it was abandoned in 1848, and annual subscriptions substituted, as more certain and reliable.

This Christian enterprise was projected by members of the Methodist Church, and by them supported until the year 1848, when, upon invitation, a limited number from the other denominations of the city cheerfully united, and now co-operate in the good work with Christian zeal. The society has at this period, 1852, twenty children under its care, and from the success of the past, is devoutly thankful to God, and in looking to the future, is hopeful and confident.

During the past year the Society received the very liberal donation of five hundred dollars. With this sum two comfortable rooms (much needed) have been added to the building. The donor is unknown.

Statistics from the Census of 1850.--Dwellings, 1,884; families, 1,981; white males, 5,279; white females, 5,081; free coloured males, 29; free coloured females, 33. Total free population, 10,422; slaves, 8,156. Deaths, 187. Farms, 581; manufacturing establishments, 30. Value of real estate, $4,339,582; value of personal estate, $4,465,400.

The Cotton Gin Manufactory of E. T. Taylor & Co. is situated in Columbus. Capital, $60,000; hands employed, 50, who are generally boarded in a large house belonging to the establishment. Number of gins manufactured every year, 1,000. Machinery capable of manufacturing 1,500 per annum. Principal building, 100 by 48 feet, three stories high, with a wing 30 by 50.

The Columbus Variety Works have two saw-mills, and machinery for manufacturing tubs, buckets, churns, &c.; also a planing machine capable of planing, tonguing, and grooving 7,000 feet of lumber per day. Employs 45 hands. Capital, $35,000.

Columbus Factory, three miles from Columbus. Capital, $50,000.

Coweta Falls Factory, situated in Columbus. Capital, $80,000.

The Howard Manufacturing Company is located in Columbus. Capital, $85,000.

The Eagle Mills were erected in 1851. The main building is of brick, 150 by 50 feet, four stories and a basement. Steam is used for all purposes for which heat is required. The machinery is adapted to the manufacture of all the various styles of cotton and woollen fabrics. Capital, $140,000. Hands employed, 240; consumption of cotton, 1,500 bales per annum; consumption of wool, 100,000 pounds per annum; spermaceti oil used, 1,000 gallons per annum; lard, 500 per annum; cords of wood, per annum, 200; barrels of flour for sizing, 350 per annum. Average pay of females, $10 per month; average pay of males, $20 per month.

Winter's Merchant Mill is eight stories high, and cost $30,000.

The Rock Island Paper Mill is situated on the Chattahoochee River, 2 1/2 miles above Columbus; partly in Georgia, and partly in Alabama. Capital, $50,000. The machinery is prepared for making all kinds of writing, printing, and wrapping paper; capable of manufacturing 2,500 pounds of paper per day; consuming 3,000 pounds of rags daily.

The following description of the "Lover's Leap" is extracted from Richards' "Georgia Illustrated."
This romantic locale is a high and ragged cliff, which terminates an ascending knoll of dark rocks, and projects boldly into the Chattahoochee River. Its summit commands one of the most magnificent displays of river scenery which Nature could present, or which Art could picture. On the left the river pursues its downward course to Columbus, in a straight line. Its flow is rapid and wild, broken by rocks, over which the water frets and foams in angry surges. The bed of the stream is that of a deep ravine, its walls lofty and irregular cliffs, covered to their verge with majestic forest growth. From this point the city of Columbus is but partially visible. At the "Leap," the river makes a sudden turn, and forms an angle with its course below, flowing in a narrow channel so regularly lined with rocks on both sides, and of such uniform width as to resemble a canal. A short distance above it makes another right angle, and resumes its old course.

Legend of the Lover's Leap.—In the early part of the present century, this region was inhabited by two powerful tribes of Indians. Rivals were they, and, with numbers equal, and alike proud names, well they vied with each other. There was no tribe among all the powerful nation of the Creeks, who boasted of their prowess before a Cusseta or a Coweta. Yet they were not friends; for who of those proud red men would bend before the acknowledged superiority of the other? It may have been a small matter from which their jealousy sprung, but the tiny thing had been cherished, till a serpent-like hatred hissed at the sound of the other's name.

The proud Chief of the Cussetas was now become an old man, and much was he venerated by all who rallied at his battle-cry. The boldest heart in all his tribe quailed before his angry eye, and the proudest did him reverence. The old man had outlived his own sons. One by one had the Great Spirit called them from their hunting-grounds, and in the flush of their manhood they had gone to the spirit-land. Yet he was not alone. The youngest of his children, the dark-eyed Mohina, was still sheltered in his bosom, and all his love for the beautiful in life was bestowed upon her;—ah, and rightly too, for the young maiden rivalled in grace the bounding fawn, and the young warriors said of her that the smile of the Great Spirit was not so beautiful. While yet a child, she was betrothed to the Young Eagle of the Cowetas, the proud scion of their warrior Chief. But stern hatred had stifled kindly feelings in the hearts of all save these two young creatures, and the pledged word was broken when the smoke of the calumet was extinguished. Mohina no longer dared to meet the young Chief openly and death faced them when they sat in a lone, wild trysting-place, 'neath the starry blazonry of midnight's dark robe. Still they were undaunted, for pure love dwelt in their hearts, and base fear crouched low before it, and went afar from them to hide in grosser souls. Think not the boy-god changes his arrows when he seeks the heart of the red man. Nay, rather with truer aim and finer point does the winged thing speed from his bow, and deeply the subtle poison sinks in the young heart, while the dark cheek glows with lover's proper hue. The deer bounded gladly by when the lovers met, and felt he was free, while the bright-eyed maiden leaned upon the bosom of Young Eagle. Their youthful hearts hoped in the future, though all in vain, for Time served but to render more fierce that hostile rivalry, more rank than deadly hatred, which existed between the tribes. Skirmishes were frequent amid their hunters, and open hostilities seemed inevitable.

And now it was told by some who had peered through the tangled underwood and matted foliage of those dim woods, that the Coweta had pressed the maiden to his heart in those lone places, and that strange words and passionate were even now breathed by him to her ear. Then the hunters of the Cussetas sprang from their couches, and made earnest haste to the dark glen. With savage yell and impetuous rush they bounded before the lovers. They fled, and love and terror added wings to their flight. For a while they distanced their pursuers. But the strength of Mohina failed her in a perilous moment, and had not the Young Eagle snatched her to his fast-beating heart, the raging enemy had made sure their fate. He rushed onward up the narrow defile before him. It led he forgot whither. In a few moments he stood on the verge of this fearful height. Wildly the maiden clung to him, and even then, in that strange moment of life, his heart throbbed proudly beneath his burden. The bold future alone was before him; there was no return. Already the breath of one of the pursuers, a hated rival, came quick upon his cheek, and the bright-gleaming tomahawk shone before him. One moment he gazed on him, and triumph flashed in the eye of the young Chief, and then without a shudder he sprang into the seething waters below. Still the young maiden clung to him, nor yet did the death-struggle part them. The mad waves dashed fearfully over them, and their loud wail was a fitting requiem to their departing spirits. The horror-stricken warriors gazed wildly into the foaming torrent, then dashed with reckless haste down the declivity, to bear the sad tidings to the old Chief. He heard their tale in silence. But sorrow was on his spirit, and it was broken. Henceforth his seat was unfilled by the council-fire, and its red light gleamed fitfully upon his grave.

The name of Muscogee is given to this division of the State to perpetuate the name of a tribe of the Creek Nation.

Le Clerc Milfort, a highly educated French gentleman, came to America in 1775, and after making a tour through the New-England States, he visited the Creek Nation. At Coweta, two miles below Columbus, he formed the acquaintance of Colonel McGillivray, the great Chief of the Creeks. Pleased with the Colonel, he determined to take up his residence in the nation. In a short time he married Megillivray's sister, was elected Grand Chief of War, and in this capacity conducted many expeditions against Georgia. Much of his time was devoted to the writing of a history of the Creeks, which he afterwards published in France. Mr. Pickett, in his History of Alabama, has extracted from this work the following particulars in relation to the Muscogees:--

Hernando Cortez with some Spanish troops landed at Vera Cruz in 1519. He fought his way thence to the city of Mexico. At that time the Muscogees then formed a separate republic on the northwest of Mexico. Hitherto invincible in war, they now rallied to the aid of Montezuma, engaging in the defence of that greatest of aboriginal cities. At length Cortez was successful. Montezuma was killed, his government overthrown, and thousands of his subjects put to the sword. Having lost many of their own warriors, the Muscogees determined to seek some other land. The whole tribe directed their course eastward until they came to the banks of the Red River, where they laid out a town, and remained there several years. In 1527 they abandoned their town, and after various battles with the Alabamas, settled upon the banks of the Wabash. How long they remained here is not known, but they finally crossed the Ohio and Tennessee, and settled upon the Yazoo. Learning what a fine country was occupied by the Alabamas, they broke up their establishments upon the Yazoo, took possession of the lands upon the Alabama, Coosa, and Tallapoosa, and advanced to the Ocmulgee, Ocone, and Ogeechee. Pushing on their conquests, they reduced a warlike tribe called the Uchees, upon the Savannah River. Some time after these conquests, the French established themselves at Mobile, by whose instrumentality a peace was made between the Alabamas and Muscogees. The Alabamas and Tookabatchas became members of the Muscogee confederacy, and in the course of time many other tribes joined them. When the English began to explore their country, and to transport goods in all parts of it, they gave all the inhabitants collectively the names of the Creeks, on account of the many beautiful rivers and streams which flowed through their extensive dominion. This union gave them much influence. In 1786 the whole number amounted to 17,280, of whom 5,860 were fighting men.
Applications for Southern Crosses of Honor submitted to The Lizzie Rutherford Chapter #60, UDC 1900-1912

by

Linda J. Kennedy

Southern Crosses of Honor were presented to veterans of the War Between the States by the United Daughters of the Confederacy. In order to receive a Southern Cross of Honor, an applicant had to be a veteran, the oldest living lineal descendant of a Confederate veteran, or a widow of a Confederate Veteran. Most of the below named applicants were members of the Columbus, Georgia Camp 511 United Confederate Veterans.

List of Letters in the Columbus and Lumpkin Post Offices,
January 1, 1832

Submitted by Callie B. McGinnis

The following lists appeared in the Columbus Enquirer on Saturday, January 7, 1832. This copy of the Columbus newspaper is the oldest readily available copy of the Columbus Enquirer. It is available on microfilm at the Columbus College Library and at a number of other research libraries in Georgia. According to Ken Thomas, noted Columbus genealogist, the other single issues of the Columbus Enquirer known to exist are:

- June 21, 1828 - owned by the Library of Congress
- July 19, 1828 - owned by the American Antiquarian Society
- July 2, 1830 - owned by the American Antiquarian Society
- August 27, 1830 - owned by the Huntington Library
- January 15, 1831 - owned by the Library of Congress

There is also an original copy of the July 16, 1831 issue at the University of Georgia Libraries. Apparently, these single issues are not available on microfilm.

What follows, then, are two lists of names of persons who were in the Columbus and Lumpkin areas in the latter part of 1829. Noted next to each name are the number of letters being held. There are numerous reasons why these individuals had not picked up their mail: they could have moved, died or been negligent in checking the Post Office.

List of Letters remaining in the Post Office at Columbus on the first day of January, 1832.

PEDDY. History of Chattahoochee County, Georgia shows James Peddy purchased 11 May 1854 town lot #58. Where did the author find a record of this as it is not in the courthouse deeds? Also no deed record of adjoining town lots there. Glen Peddy, RR 1, Box 30 B, Sullivan, IL 61951.

LEWIS-JACKSON. Looking for information on the family of Samuel Timothy Lewis, b. 6 April 1845; m. Sarah Mary Elizabeth Jackson on 25 July 1872, Nacogdoches, Nacogdoches Co., TX; d. 2 Feb 1923 in the Confederate Home, Austin, Travis Co., TX; buried Washington Avenue Cemetery, Houston, Harris Co., TX. Sam Lewis may have been married once before his marriage to S.M.E. Jackson. According to the 1910 US Census, Sam Lewis' father was born in NY and his mother was born in GA. His father's initials were S. L. (probably Samuel L.). Sam Lewis had a brother named Bill. Sam Lewis worked in the Confederate Naval Iron Works until the last year of the war when he joined the 3rd Georgia Reserves under the command of Captain Oliver Cromwell. Patricia Marek, 12802 Lamplight Village Ave., Austin TX 78727.

MCDANIEL, ROGERS, CORDERY. Need parents and siblings of Alexander McDaniel, b 1795, d. 1830. Need siblings of his wife Catherine Rogers, b. 1811, daughter of Robert J. Rogers and Lucy (Cordery) Rogers. Alexander and Catherine Rogers moved from Big Tallapoosa, GA ca 1827 to Indian Territory, OK. Marilee Hageness, P.O. Box 2636, Anniston, AL 36202.
