INSTRUCTIONS TO CONTRIBUTORS: Manuscripts related to the journal's focus of teaching and learning are accepted for consideration for publication. Submissions may include: (1) a research article chronicling an original study, (2) an informed editorial on an issue relevant to the journal's focus, (3) a book review about a work that is less than 2 years old and is written by a prominent author about a relevant topic related to the journal's focus, or (4) a special feature essay related to current events in the university or community that are in some way linked to the focus of the journal. Manuscripts should be submitted online through Digital Commons. For more information about the submission process and formatting, please see csuepress.columbusstate.edu/pil.
CONTENTS

The Trouble with Test Banks .................................................................................................................................. 3

Harvey Richman and Molly Hrezo

Teachers' Perceptions and Use of eReaders ............................................................................................................ 9

Paulina Kuforiji and Bonita Friend Williams

Elements of Change .................................................................................................................................................. 15

Charles E. Myers

Reflection on Retention: An Evaluation Study on Minority Students' Success in an Online Nursing Program................................................................. 19

Amanda Hawkins, Elizabeth Frander, Melissa Young, and Kaylen Deal

Building Multicultural Competency through Direct Experiential Contact: An Immersive Case Study Experience......................................................................................... 29

Michael Baltimore, Jadde Barnes, Tyler Brown, Janae' Carey, Tabria Jackson, Kevin White, and Lecia Wright

Informal Advocacy as a Way to Deeper Learning of Adult Development and Aging Processes, Part 1 ............................................................................................................ 41

Dean D. VonDras